RE: MM Docket 92-266

To The Commission:

In response to the Federal Communications Commission solicitation for comments contained in the Commissioner's Notice of Proposed Rule Making adopted December 10, 1992, please accept these comments. I am currently a duly elected City Councilmember of the City of Denison, Texas, and I believe that the City Council will opt to seek certification to regulate the rates of its cable television franchisee, Post-Newsweek Cable Company.

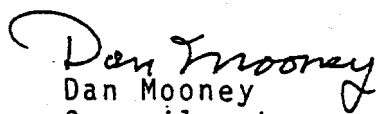

At II.A.IV, NPRM you state the basic question, "Whether the purpose and terms of the Cable Act embody a congressional intent that our rules produce rates generally lower than those in effect when the Cable Act of 1992 was enacted (and if so, to what degree), or, rather a congressional intent that regulatory standards serve primarily as a check on prospective rate increase?" Given the widespread programming changes in the form of re-tiering cable services and rate increases occurring now before the Commission promulgates its rules, the only congressional intent that can now be served is the second part of your query.

The consumer protection interests which were to be served by the Act (as reflected in its title) are being frustrated, if not eliminated, by the practice of cable companies such as Post-Newsweek. Furthermore, when such cable companies restructure their programming so as to eliminate from the basic service (for

Additionally, the Commission's proposed "benchmark" method for basic rate control is not sound. Ratemaking should be based on the cost of providing the service which varies from state to state, region to region. Benchmarking will only serve to increase costs for those areas and municipalities that, even during deregulation, remained diligent in monitoring the service provider and insisting upon restraint in rate increases.

Finally, I urge the FCC to require that every provider of cable service return to the status quo of October, 1992 to the extent that the provider used the 180 days from enactment to promulgation of the rules to evade the regulatory effects of the Act and its rules. Any other result is to reward those who seek to evade the Act.

Respectfully submitted,

Dan Mooney
Councilmember
